Bomb Search – Detailed UXO Risk Assessment

Bomb Search provides accurate Unexploded Ordnance (UXO) source information and risk assessment for clients’ sites in the UK. Bomb Search analyses over 40 different data sets from a nationwide geospatial database of UXO threats and the Risk Assessments are produced by 6 Alpha, renowned experts in the field of UXO. This report is ideal for sites which are already known to have a level of risk.

Key Features

This A4 PDF UXO report provides a fully quantifiable risk assessment which considers both the probability of the UXO threat and the potential consequences. It consists of an executive summary and 5 stage assessment:

- Site location and description
- Review of historical data sets including the Abandoned Bomb Register
- Detailed data analysis of data sets by a UXO professional
- Quantifiable risk assessment resulting in a clear risk rating
- Recommended risk mitigation measures

Ensure Your Clients Are Protected

The Detailed UXO Risk Assessment desktop review has been determined by an UXO expert and benchmarked against other similar sites in the UK, offering a high level of resolution that seeks to zone out potential risk areas. This report offers fast delivery to your desk-top and will be returned within 7 working days.

Case Study

Crossrail, the largest civil engineering project in the UK and the largest single addition to the London transport network for over 50 years, were faced with a UXB threat across certain parts of their scheme. This case study describes the problems that Crossrail faced, how they helped to establish and to document UXB best practice and how, with 6 Alpha’s guidance, they employed high resolution datasets to articulate and manage the UXB risks posed in order to deliver project safety at best value.
