1. Residential Radon Potential Result

1.1 Is the property in a Radon Affected Area?

The information in this section provides an answer to one of the standard legal enquiries on house purchase in England and Wales, known as CON29 standard Enquiry of Local Authority; 3.13 Radon Gas: Location of the Property in a Radon Affected Area.

Question: Is the property in a Radon Affected Area as defined by Public Health England(PHE) and if so what percentage of homes are above the Action Level?

Answer: The property is not in a Radon Affected Area, as less than 1% of properties are above the Action Level.

1.2 Are Radon Protective Measures required?

The information in this section will detail the level of protection required for new dwellings under as described in the latest Building Research Establishment guidance on radon protective measures for new dwellings. This may include extensions to the property.

Question: Is the property in an area where Radon Protection Measures are required for new properties or extensions to existing ones as described in either publications BR211 (England and Wales) or BR376 (Scotland) by the Building Research Establishment?

Answer: No Radon Protective Measures are necessary.

1.3 Combined Radon Guidance

Radon is a colourless, odourless radioactive gas which is present in all areas of the United Kingdom, usually at levels that pose a negligible risk to homebuyers. However, in some areas levels of radon are much higher than in others, and in these cases it can pose a health risk. The data supplied by the Public Health England (PHE) and the British Geological Survey (BGS) is not able to determine exact Radon levels, as this information can only be obtained through site-specific, in-situ testing. As less than 1% of properties in the area may be radon affected, the PHE do not consider that further action is necessary.

The responses given on the level of Radon Protective Measures required are based on a joint radon potential dataset from the Public Health England (PHE) and the British Geological Survey (BGS). No Radon Protective Measures are required for new builds or extensions.

1.4 Further details on Radon

Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas, which enters buildings from the ground. Outdoors, it is diluted to very low levels. However, in some cases the radon level indoors can build up to high concentrations. In such cases, it does pose a serious risk to health. Exposure to high concentrations increases the risk of lung cancer. Public Health England recommends that radon levels should be reduced in homes where the annual average is at or above 200 becquerels per cubic metre (200 Bq m⁻³). This is termed the Action Level. Public Health England defines Radon Affected Areas as those with 1% chance or more of a house having a radon concentration at or above the Action Level of 200 Bq m⁻³.

The joint PHE-BGS digital Radon Potential Dataset used in this report provides the current definitive map of Radon Affected Areas in England and Wales.

Indoor radon levels can usually be substantially reduced at a cost comparable to many home improvements, such as replacing carpets. Details of methods of reducing radon levels are given on the Building Research Establishment Website. <http://www.bre.co.uk/radon/index.html>
